
CHECHNYA TODAY

A SOLUTION TO THE LGBTQ PROBLEM IN OUR NATION

Throughout the past few years, our nation has become increasingly oppressive towards members of the LGBTQ community. Headed primarily by President Nikolai Putin, those in opposition of the LGBTQ community have begun to take action, passing legislation, while others have begun to take to the streets, with violent displays and actions against all who are perceived to be non-heterosexual. Further, when speaking to the Russian people, it becomes obvious that a large portion of the population is in favor of such actions. However, while action must be taken, we can not do so in a disorderly fashion.

Following the assassination of former President Vladimir Putin by Alexei Romanov, the infamous terrorist and known homosexual, it became obvious to Nikolai Putin that our nation could no longer continue to allow homosexuals or sexual deviants to remain secret. By working with Russian lawmakers, he has been able to create a mandatory database, in which all LGBTQ people must register themselves, ensuring the public is aware of said people. This will be able to prevent another attack, potentially saving Putin's life. Further, when combined with previous laws banning public demonstrations, the parents of our nation will be able to keep the children of our nation safe and uncorrupted by those who would wish to alter their sexuality. At a public rally in Moscow, Putin was quoted as saying, "My people, finally we can keep our children untainted by the curse of those who killed my father." This was met with thunderous applause, demonstrating that this truly is the will of the nation, and we must take further steps to benefit the majority of our people.

While the pogroms currently occurring in Chechnya may work to eradicate a small portion of LGBTQ peoples, it is too ineffective to have a large impact on our society, and too indiscriminate to be allowed to continue. If our nation truly wishes to deal with the plague of non-heterosexual outcasts, more organized action is needed. As they currently stand, these pogroms only have the potential to uncover a small percentage of the LGBTQ community present throughout our nation. In addition, the fires being started could cause millions in property damage, and the chaos presents criminals with an opportunity for looting and other petty crimes. It must be ensured that miscreants and vagrants are not provided with an excuse to degrade society. We cannot continue to allow these pogroms to continue, as the risk of heterosexual citizens being caught in the crossfire, or wrongfully targeted, is too high to justify the potential results. It is not worth the health and wellbeing of valuable members of the Russian nation, when there other options present. In addition, these pogroms continue to reaffirm the Russian people's desire for our government to deal with the growing LGBTQ problem in our society.

While some may argue that members of the LGBTQ community are able to function as a law abiding citizens, statistics provided by the government finds this to be demonstrably false. In a study conducted in 2018, it was found that, in addition to a majority of pedophilia cases being perpetrated by homosexuals, a startlingly large portion of children who were made victims of such a horrific crime suffered life altering physical and psychological impacts, with up to fifteen percent attempting suicide. If the future of our nation is in the hands of our children, we must not continue to tolerate those who wish to defile them.

After analyzing the current state our nation, it becomes clear that more drastic action must be taken against the LGBTQ community. They have brought too much suffering to our nation, causing the deaths of both Vladimir Putin, as well as countless children. While I am not advocating for a genocide, I do believe that it may be necessary in the near future to detain these deviants, in order to prevent them from spreading their plague. Not only will this free future generations from this malevolent pestilence, but our economy will be boosted, allowing those who have done so much harm to finally aid Russia. By potentially having detainees work in reeducation camps, we will not only increase the production of raw materials and goods, but we may be able to teach some individuals the error of their ways, converting them back into functioning members of our proud society. Our nation can no longer continue to ignore the will of the people, and nor can they continue to place children and innocent people at risk by allowing pogroms to continue. It has become necessary for our government to take more extensive and impactful actions